

Art Source Hunting

By Nicole (ThermiteFe8)

This was a piece of Dusttale fanart that's been reposted to hell and back, but nobody seems to know who drew it. You'd think that a simple Google image/lens reverse search would work, but nothing comes up. I tried for a while, but it's all uncredited pinterest reposts, uncredited fanfic posts, and, even more disgustingly, amazon/displate/wallpaper sites trying to sell this art without even crediting the original artist.

I kept searching and I found this user on Deviantart who posted this art and claimed that they were the artist.

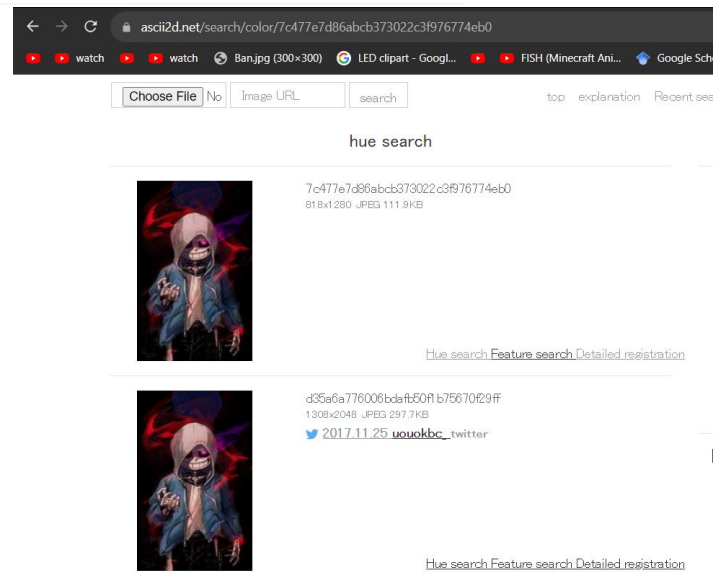

This would've been the end of the search, but I knew that they were a liar because I found evidence that this fanart was floating around since 2019 at the very least.

Undertale Wallpaper 2019 HD Captures d'écran

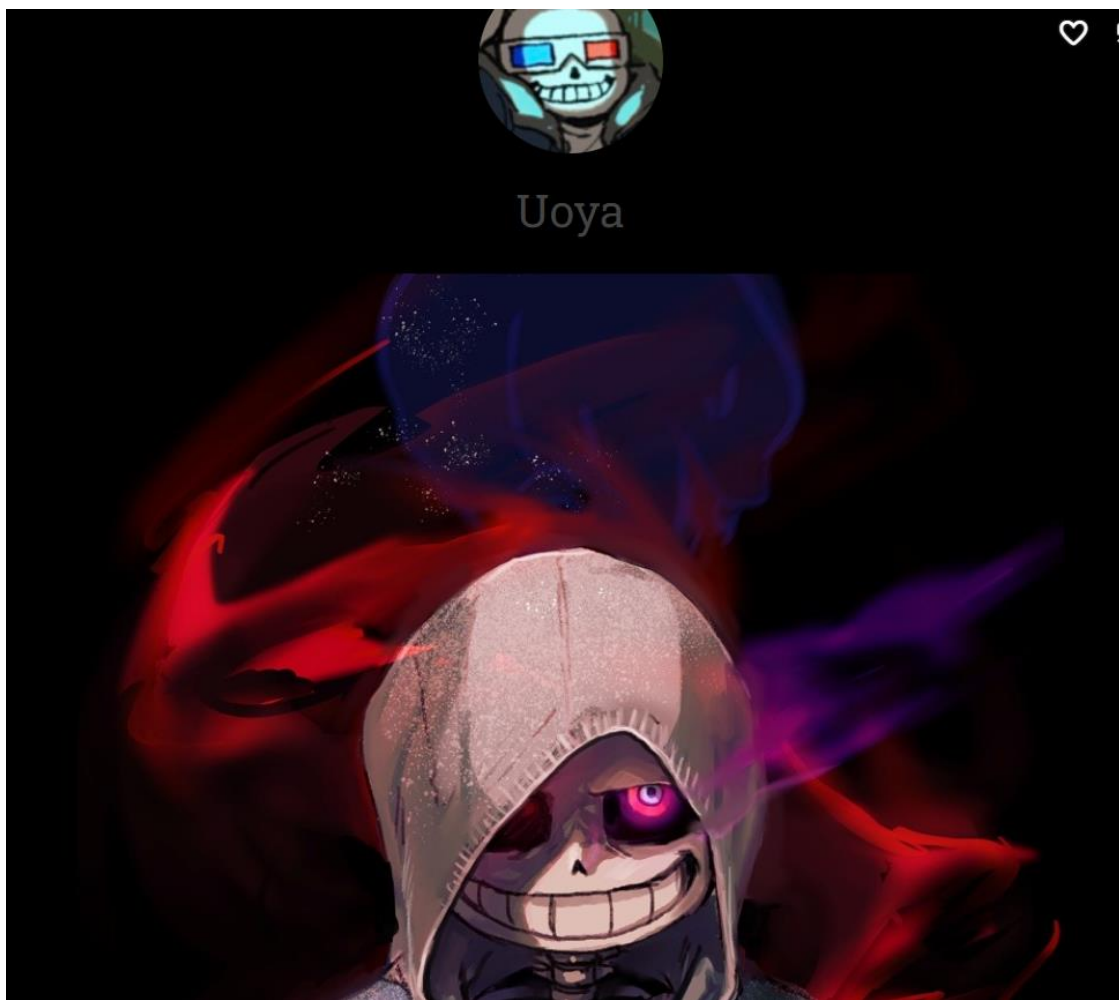

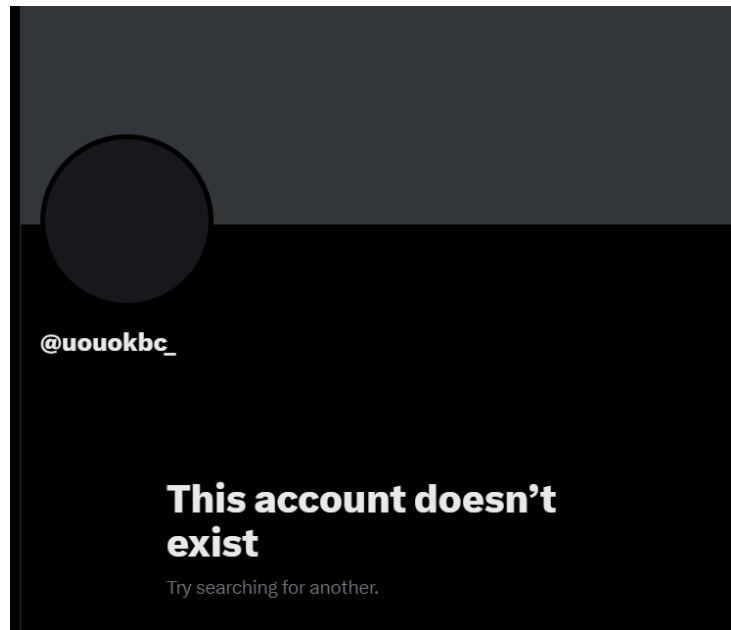

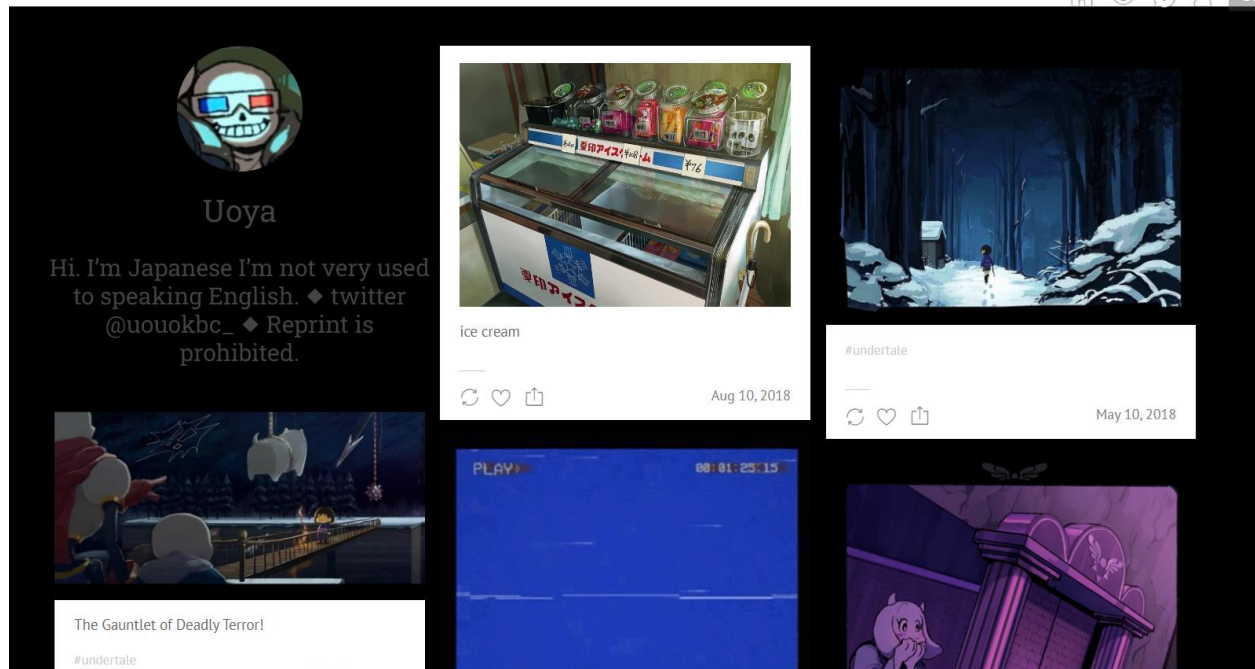

I tried several reverse image searching sites until I stumbled upon one that specialized in Asian artists (ascii2d.net)

It seemed to find someone, but the Twitter link was dead.

However, it still displayed the handle, so I googled the handle and a Tumblr page came up with a bunch of original art and after some scrolling to 2017, I finally found it.

Uoya's the artist – here's a link to their Tumblr.

I can't stress enough how mad this makes me. Normally it's just 1 or 2 reposts away or at least some pinterest reposter has the decency to add a link to the artist. The reposting situation isn't usually this bad either with tons of the reposters selling the art without crediting the artist.